What are cookies?

As is common practice with almost all professional websites, this site uses cookies — small text files that are downloaded to your computer or device — to improve your browsing experience. This page explains what information cookies gather, how we use them, and why we sometimes need to store them. We'll also explain how you can prevent these cookies from being stored, although this may reduce the functionality of certain features on our website. For general information about cookies, visit the Wikipedia article on HTTP Cookies.

How we use cookies

We use cookies for a variety of reasons, including:

- To remember your login status and preferences

- To enable key functionality like shopping carts and secure checkout

- To understand how users interact with our site so we can improve user experience

Unfortunately, in most cases there are no industry standard options for disabling cookies without completely disabling the features and functionality they support. It is recommended that you leave cookies enabled unless you are certain that you do not need them.

Disabling cookies

You can adjust your browser settings to disable or restrict cookies. (Refer to your browser's help section for specific instructions.)
Please note: Disabling cookies may impact your experience on our website and may disable certain features or prevent some pages from functioning properly — such as login functionality or saved preferences.

The Cookies We Set

1. Account-related cookies

GD

When you create an account, we use cookies to manage the signup process and general administration. These cookies may remain after logout to remember your preferences.

2. Login-related cookies

We use cookies to remember when you are logged in, so you don't need to log in again on every page. These cookies are cleared when you log out.

3. Email newsletters cookies

If you subscribe to our emails or newsletters, cookies may be used to remember your subscription status and control relevant notifications.

4. Forms-related cookies

When you fill out a form (such as a contact or enquiry form), cookies may be stored to remember your details for future interactions.

5. Site preference cookies

To enhance your experience, we allow you to set preferences for how the site operates. We store these preferences via cookies, so they're remembered each time you visit.

Third Party Cookies

In some cases, we use cookies provided by trusted third parties:

Google Analytics

We use Google Analytics, one of the most widely used analytics solutions on the web, to help us understand how you use the site and how we can improve it. These cookies may track things like how long you spend on the site and which pages you visit. For more information, visit the official Google Analytics page.

More Information

We hope this policy has clarified how we use cookies and why we do so. If you're unsure whether you need cookies, it's usually safer to leave them enabled in case they interact with a feature you use.
